Audience profile

The website “FilmBuff” was specifically designed for the cinema-goers, who prefer to book online tickets without extra effort or paying a visit to the ticket store some time in advance. Particularly, adults and teenagers can benefit from this website, as films will have censorship or age restrictions (16+ or 18+ content). The website can be accessed via the following URL: <https://solaz1.github.io/>

Having got acquainted with the availability options, the users of the website can book tickets online with the “additional info” button on the main page, as indicated.

Functions and features

The site consists of six pages, which are: home, about, trendy, genres, latest news, upcoming. In order to guide the user correctly all the actual information and content materials have been used. To make the site more dynamic in appearance Bootstrap 4 components were utilized, such as “Carousel slideshow”. Also, in the main page there is quick review part, where the user can see the main movies on the list and related comments. The end of the main page has footer with sitemap to navigate film-lovers through website’s main pages as well as links to the external sources.

In “about” page, the contact details along with the purpose of the website is thoroughly explained. Extra functionality has been added to this page in order to give external sources to the social profiles of the author. Plus, special statistics feature is utilized so as to show information about the satisfaction of the users. The source code utilized here was borrowed from Codepen (2018).

“Trendy” page states the list of films, which show which are currently in trend and rating of the movies in the movies, while “Genres” depict most genres of films so as to guide the user to analyze in what type of films he is interested in. This, in turn, increases usability of the website. Also, in genres page there is a video, which explains explicit information about genres (Ministry of Cinema, 2015).

In turn, in the website, there is a page specifically dedicated to news in the cinema industry (Empireonline, 2018). External links were provided to keep informed the user about. The code for cards used in this page were borrowed from Bootstrap website, components.

Finally, the last page was designed with the slider to inform ticket bookers for the upcoming movies.
